BOOK DESCRIPTION

Ember's Gallop invites readers to experience life through the eyes and senses of Ember, a brave wild mustang mare, as she leads her herd through a raging wildfire. Told through sensory-rich perspective, this 72,000+ word novel immerses readers in the raw beauty of survival and the unspoken language of horses. When flames threaten everything she knows, Ember must protect her younger sibling Spark, navigate treacherous terrain, and draw upon ancestral wisdom to guide her family to safety. A powerful tale of resilience, family bonds, and environmental awareness that will captivate animal fiction enthusiasts and nature lovers alike.

WHY ADD TO YOUR LIBRARY'S COLLECTION

- Unique Perspective: Animal POV fiction is underrepresented in YA collections, offering readers a fresh, immersive narrative experience
- Environmental Relevance: Eco-fiction themes of wildfire ecology and conservation align with current curriculum needs and reader interests
- Ready-to-Use Resources: Includes discussion guides, book club questions, and activity sheets for easy program implementation
- Perfect for Themed Displays: Ideal for "Horse Adventure," "Rural Coming-of-Age," "Climate Resilience," or "Animal Narratives" collections
- Recognized Quality: #1 New Release on Amazon in Teen & Young Adult Country Life eBooks

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Ava grew up with a deep love for the untamed beauty of the American West, where the whispers of wild mustangs and the crackle of distant storms inspired her storytelling. A lifelong admirer of horses and their unspoken bonds, she has spent countless hours observing their movements, studying their behaviors, and marveling at their resilience in the face of nature's challenges. With a knack for weaving sensory-rich narratives and a heart for environmental stewardship, Ava hopes to inspire readers to explore their connection to nature.
